JOHN JACOBS' GOLF SCHOOLS & ACADEMIES

The World Leader In Golf Instruction

John Jacobs is a member of the World Golf Hall of Fame and Golf Magazine's Golf Instructors Hall of Fame. After a distinguished international playing career, John served as Tournament Director/General of the European Tour from 1971 to 1975, and was the non-playing captain of the 1981 European Ryder Cup Team. John's overall influence on the game, and particularly in teaching, has earned him the unique distinction of "The Golf Doctor", and he is still considered one of the most highly respected instructors in the game.

Shelby Futch has repeatedly been recognized by Golf Digest, Golf Magazine, and Golf Tips, as one of the worlds' top instructors. Shelby played professionally on the Far Eastern, South American and PGA tours and won the Illinois PGA Championship, before turning his attention to teaching in the 1970's. He has produced golf instruction videos, been featured in the book "Golf Gurus", and has traveled the world as an instructor and ambassador for the game of golf.

In 1976, John and Shelby formed the John Jacobs' Golf Schools, which to date, has graduated over 500,000 students, at more than 100 locations across the United States and abroad. Today, the same time-honored tradition of teaching excellence and practical approach to the game that has helped so many students through our golf schools is also available at our academy locations.

Whether you're a beginner, intermediate, or advanced player, we now offer a diverse selection of affordable programs and packages specifically designed to meet your needs. From individual and group lessons, to custom instruction programs and corporate golf outings, we guarantee the complete learning experience.

Experience the difference and see for yourself... Now as then, the John Jacobs' Golf Schools and Academies continues as "The World Leader in Golf Instruction"
